

Sinclair Broadcasting's decision to force their stations to air an anti-Kerry documentary days before the election is a clear example of the dangers of media consolidation.

Sinclair uses the public airwaves free of charge, and has no business using that power to influence any one political agenda.

It is easy to see why Sinclair wishes to support an administration that seeks to allow fewer and fewer entities to gain more and more power and wealth. Sinclair's actions show why we need to strengthen media ownership rules, not weaken them. They show why the license renewal process needs to involve more than a returned postcard. Thank you.
